Industry Overview

Importers dealing with the Canada Border Services Agency rely on a licensed customs broker to manage the documents necessary to get their shipments processed.

Employment as a customs broker in BC is almost entirely (90%) concentrated in the Lower Mainland.

This is a steady occupation sector with no dramatic change in demand expected prior to 2022. According to industry sources, finding qualified workers to fill openings in this field is difficult. Customs brokerage firms regularly train and promote existing staff and allow them to perform brokerage work once they are qualified.

Qualifications

This profession is not regulated in British Columbia

Licensing Requirements for a Customs Broker

Customs brokers who open their own brokerage business must be licensed by the Canadian Border Services Agency (CBSA).

While in most cases any duly authorized agent may transact business with the CBSA on behalf of clients, only a licensed customs broker may account for goods and pay duties under Section 32 of the Customs Act as an agent of an importer or owner.

For information on the Customs Brokers Professional Examination, see:
