Industry Overview

Adult educators are in demand in all regions of the province. However, you may find more employment opportunities if you are willing to work in northern and rural regions, especially in speciality areas such as health programs and trades training.

Demand also varies based on your area of specialization. In some fields, such as English, there are a sufficient number of new graduates. There is also increasing demand by businesses for skills-upgrading. This is increasing demand for instructors, particularly in some technical and applied technology fields.

There is a growing trend towards part-time employment and you may not find full-time employment immediately.

In recent years there has been a significant growth in the number of private post-secondary training institutions that provide technical, vocational, and language training. These institutions often offer part-time work and contract positions. Typically, these positions pay less than equivalent positions in the government funded institutions.

Both public and private colleges are increasing online learning options for students. You will be expected to learn the technology associated with this form of instruction.

Working Hours

You work a variety of hours depending on your work place. Some adult education instructors teach during evenings or weekends. If you work as a corporate trainer you must accommodate the schedules of the workplace. As well, you must be prepared to travel.

Part-time or part-year employment, including session and contract work, is becoming more common.

This occupation offers flexibility in scheduling time for teaching, course preparation, and grading papers and exams. Increased offerings of online courses may also allow you greater scheduling flexibility.

2. Skills, Education and Experience

Skills

- Excellent written and oral communication
- Critical thinking
- Teaching/training/facilitation
- Leadership skills
- Interpersonal skills
- Background in the subject area being taught

Education and Experience

- Bachelor's degree, a college diploma, or demonstrated expertise in the field of instruction is required.
- Master's degree in the field of instruction may be required.
- Certificate, diploma, or degree in adult education may be required.
- For instructors of trades, completion of apprenticeship training and industry or trade certification are required. Additional courses in teaching or a provincial teaching certificate may be required.

Qualifications

This occupation is not regulated in British Columbia.

Most recent entrants have an undergraduate university degree and many have a graduate degree. A certificate from the Provincial Instructor Diploma Program or degree in adult education may be required. The Provincial Instructor Diploma Program is taught through Vancouver Community College.

You can learn more about this program and other adult education certificates at:
