4. What Is The Job Outlook In BC?

The majority of job openings are expected to come from retirements. British Columbia has become increasingly popular as a tourist destination and this will improve demand for workers in this occupation. New conference facilities (i.e. the Vancouver Convention Centre) are also increasing the capacity of the province to host large events. Industry sources report increased demand for workers may be in response to more positive economic conditions. Competition for employment in this field will likely be strong due to the desirable nature of this work.

The forecasted average annual employment growth rate is 1.4% for 2016 - 2020 and then 1.2% from 2020 until 2025. The majority of employment and growth is in the Lower Mainland / Southwest BC (1.4% average annual employment growth) and the Vancouver Island / Coast region (1.6% average annual employment growth)

JobBank Canada predicts that the employment outlook will be good for Conference and event planners (NOC 1226) in British Columbia for the 2017-2019 period. Employment growth will lead to new positions. Positions will become available due to retirements.

5. How do I become a Conference & Event Planner

Conference & event planners do not require certification in BC. However, certification related to special events, meetings or conference management can provide better employment opportunities. See for example:

- CMP – ‘Certified Meeting Professional’ designation awarded by Events Industry Council, see: <http://www.eventscouncil.org/CMP.aspx>
- CEM – ‘Certified In Exposition Management’ awarded by CAEM (Canadian Association of Exposition Management): nine courses plus three years of experience required to gain the CEM professional designation, see: <https://caem.ca/education/cem-certified-exposition-management/>

Minimum requirements to be a conference & event planner include:

- university degree or college diploma in business, tourism or hospitality administration is usually required.
- several years of experience in hospitality, tourism administration, public relations or in a comparable position at a conference centre or hotel are usually required and may substitute for formal education requirements.

For further information, see:

6. How Do I Find A Job?

Where would I work?

Conference & Event Planners work in:

- tourism associations
- trade and professional associations
- convention and conference centres
- conference and event planning companies
- large hotels/resorts
- large companies that stage events for their staff or clients
- may also be self-employed

Finding "Hidden Jobs"

Many job vacancies are not advertised. The resources below will help you with finding jobs in this "hidden" job market.

Using Directories to Create a List of Potential Employers

You can use directories to produce lists of employers who are in the restaurant, food service and hospitality business. Contact them directly to find out if they're hiring.

- Canadian Society of Professional Event Planners CanSPEP – Planner directory

<http://www.canspep.ca/find-a-planner/planner-directory/#cid=1057&did=104>

- Reference Canada

<http://www.vpl.ca/digital-library/reference-canada>

Click on "Start Search" beside Canadian Businesses, then select the "Advanced Search" button. Select both "Keyword/SIC/NAICS" under Business Type and "City" under Geography. In the top search box enter "event planning" and click LOOKUP. Select the appropriate headings. Lower down, select the Province, choose the cities, and click the "View Results" button.

NOTE: You can access this database from a Library computer. If you are using a computer from outside the Library, you will need a Vancouver Public Library card to login to this database. After clicking on the database name, you will be asked to enter your library card number and PIN (usually last four digits of your telephone number).

Networking, Volunteering and Temporary Agencies

Many positions are filled by people who have been recommended by someone they know. Networking, working as a volunteer or registering with a temporary employment agency are good ways of helping you find jobs and meet people in your industry.

Networking and the Hidden Job Market:

When looking for work, be sure to talk to friends, relatives and neighbours. They may know someone who is hiring! Working as a volunteer, attending events, and joining clubs and associations are good ways to gain "Canadian experience." They are also good ways to meet people to learn about the local job market.

Volunteering in Community Organizations, Recreation Centres, Local Cities

Many public community organizations, recreation centres and municipalities sponsor or hold events – contact your local community organization to see if they are accepting volunteers for events. You can start by looking for organizations in:

- bc211.ca

<http://www.bc211.ca/> [provides contact information for community, government and social services organizations/agencies in BC]

- Municipalities: complete list of BC cities and towns available at:

www.ubcm.ca/EN/main/about/ubcm-members/municipalities.html,

go to your local city/town website and search for 'volunteer'

- Public Recreation Centres and Parks

go to your local city/town website and search for 'parks' or 'recreation' or 'community centre'; when you locate your local recreation centre, search for 'volunteer'

Also check with local sports organizations to see if they need Tournament volunteers.

7. Applying for a Job

In Canada, employers usually expect to receive a resume and a cover letter that identifies the position you are applying for and summarizes your experience. Use the library catalogue, <http://vpl.bibliocommons.com/> to find books on writing resumes and cover letters specific to your industry.

For more information see:

- Writing Resumes and Cover Letters

Go to <http://skilledimmigrants.vpl.ca>

[Search Writing Resumes and Cover Letters]

8. Where Can This Job Lead?

Recent graduates typically find work as event coordinator assistants, junior meeting planners in a hotel and catering assistants. Conference planners who have gained experience managing a wide range of activities are qualified for a range of administrative and managerial tasks as senior planners, team managers or directors of sales. With experience, it is possible to move up to related positions in marketing or hospitality management or to progress to managing larger events. -
