5. How do I become a Material Handler?

In BC, there is no certification required to work as a material handler. However, secondary school education is usually required and graduation is usually needed in order to advance to supervisory positions. College level courses or programs in warehouse operations, production and inventory management, or supply chain management will also improve your chances of advancing your career.

Voluntary Certification: 'Parts and warehousing Person 1', 'Parts Person 2', 'Parts Person 3'

In BC, the Industry Training Authority – ITA (<https://www.itabc.ca/>) offers courses and apprenticeships as a 'Parts and warehousing Person 1' or 'Parts Person 2' or 'Parts Person 3'. These programs will train you to order, warehouse and keep inventory control over parts and accessories for industries like the automotive, commercial transport, heavy duty, marine and warehousing sectors. If you successfully complete all three parts of the program and the Interprovincial 'Red Seal' exam, you will be certified as a 'Red Seal' Parts Person 3 by the BC Industry Training Authority.

Networking, Volunteering and Temporary Agencies

Many positions are filled by people who have been recommended by someone they know. Networking, working as a volunteer or registering with a temporary employment agency are good ways of helping you find jobs and meet people in your industry.

Networking and the Hidden Job Market:

When looking for work, be sure to talk to friends, relatives and neighbours. They may know someone who is hiring! Working as a volunteer, attending events, and joining clubs and associations are good ways to gain “Canadian experience.” They are also good ways to meet people to learn about the local job market.
